Appeals Against School District Assessments.

About a dozen of the ratepayers in Comet School District, who are dissatisfied with the assessments on their lands as made by the Assessor of the School District, have lodged appeals against the assessments, as per the School Assessment Ordinance.

It would appear that these assessments have been made, to conform with the assessments made by the Assessor of the Municipal District in which Comet is situated.

These appeals have been laid before a Justice of the Peace in Stony, and are billed to come up on the afternoon of Saturday next, Mar. 10, at 3 p.m. The Assessor of the S. D. has been notified, and will be present, with the assessment book.

Ratepayers in the same Division (No. 1) whose land is in Warden S. D., are also taking action, and have made an appeal to W J Davidson, the J.P. at Holborn.

Inga M. D. Again.

Some two score ratepayers of Inga Municipality have sent a written protest to the Minister of Municipal Affairs regarding the way their annual meeting in Stony Plain was conducted; it being alleged no minutes were read from the annual meeting in February, 1922; and that no minutes were taken of the proceedings of the 1923 annual meeting; also stating that no proper notification of the meeting had been given the ratepayers. Several other grievances were noted in the protest.

Why Great Britain Is Great

Under the above heading the Chicago Daily Tribune recently paid a magnificent tribute to the Government and people of Great Britain. Coming, as it does, immediately following the surprising articles in the Hearst journals in commendation of the British attitude in dealing with the many and enormously difficult after-the-war problems of Europe, it is most gratifying evidence of the fact that the people of the United States appreciate and are in sympathy with the parent branch of the English-speaking people.

The unity of sentiment at present prevailing between the two great Anglo-Saxon nations, and which has steadily developed during and since the war, is the most promising thing for the future in a world now torn and distracted by national jealousies and suspicions. If the people of the British Empire and the United States present a united front, and remain on guard against those common enemies who seek to sow the seeds of discord and ill-will, they can rule the world.

Great Britain plunged unhesitatingly and quite unprepared into the Great War because of a "scrap of paper." That is to say, Great Britain having affixed its signature to a treaty guaranteeing the neutrality of Belgium, thereby pledging itself to see that such neutrality was observed, the Empire rushed to arms to make good its promise and in defence of Belgium which relied on that promise.

In living up to its pledge in this respect, Great Britain expended all its resources, of men, material and money. It financed its European Allies to the extent of thousands of millions of dollars. In order to do this and meet its own tremendous expenditures, Great Britain was finally compelled to borrow billions of dollars from the United States. It gave its pledge that such loans would be repaid with interest.

Staggering under a burden of taxation greater than is borne by any other nation in the world, with its foreign trade, upon which it so largely exists, crippled because of unsettled economic conditions everywhere, with hundreds of thousands of its own people unemployed as a result and who must be supported by the State, with its European Allies as yet unable to make repayment even of interest on the large sums advanced to them, Great Britain was faced with the necessity of meeting its obligations to the United States.

The British Government might, as the Chicago Tribune says, have evaded, postponed, quibbled and argued. They could have presented a strong case for delay in action. They might even have repudiated. But, adds The Tribune, "they have chosen to act with honor, candor and decision." They have agreed to a refunding of their enormous debt to the United States, and to repay the full amount, principal and interest, within a stated number of years.

In recommending the prompt acceptance by Congress of the British war debt agreement, President Harding reminds Congress and the United States people that the transaction "means vastly more than the mere refunding and the ultimate discharge of the largest international loan ever contracted. It is a recommitment of the English-speaking world to the validity of contract." The President added that the failure of the British undertaking would have spread political and economic discouragement throughout the world and general repudiation would likely have followed in its wake.

English-speaking people know, or ought to know, what the validity of contract means. The validity of contract, the keeping of the pledged word, the fulfilment of agreements, this is the keystone of the arch which sustains the civilization we share in common. The English-speaking peoples believe that when such faith is broken society will break up, dissolve, as the Russian did. The validity of contract, the validity of treaties, this is vital to tolerable human relations, to stability, to progress.

Speaking of the British action, the Chicago Tribune uses these significant words: "This is British national character, the stuff which has made the British great through the centuries and sustains their world embracing power today, something greater than armies or navies. The British settlement is, in fact, more important to Britain and the world than a campaign of conquest. A battle might add a colony to the Empire, but this buttresses the foundations of British power and prosperity.

"That is character. It is also farseeing intelligence, for British well-being as well as ours depends upon the stabilization of international intercourse, especially between America and Great Britain. And as the President well says, the settlement is 'a new element of financial and economic stabilization, when the world is sadly needing a reminder of the ways of peace. It is an example of encouragement and inspiration, when the world is staggering in discouragement and bowed with the sorrow of wars that were and fears of wars which humanity is praying may be avoided.'"

"I Now Feel Fine"

Italy to London by Rail

Eliminating Loading at Coasts Will Cut Carrying Charges

It is thought that in six months it will be possible to run a train, say, from Italy to Zeebrugge, in Belgium; there drive in upon a seaferry floating stage; join the ferry platform up with the English railway at Harwich, and then run the train direct to London, without unloading the goods during the journey.

The train ferry was used with excellent effect during the war. Much military material passed safely by that means from Richborough, in Kent, to Dunkirk, in France. But, apart from the war service, Richborough and Dunkirk have not proved the best places for the interchange of ferry trains. Harwich and Zeebrugge are thought to have a better position, and hence the new start in train-ferry experiments.

It is said that having through traffic, without unloading and loading on the coasts, will make a saving of from fifteen shillings to a pound on each ton of goods carried. If that is so, home grown produce will have to be carried by our railways more cheaply to our markets if it is to compete.

Spend your money at home, thereby helping your own town and local merchants.

WINTER HARD ON BABY

The winter season is a hard one on the baby. He is more or less confined to stuffy, badly ventilated rooms. It is so often stormy that the mother does not get him out in the fresh air as often as she should. He catches colds which rack his little system; his stomach and bowels get out of order and he becomes peevish and cross. To guard against this, the mother should keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets in the house. They regulate the stomach and bowels, and break up colds. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Treatment for Tubercular Mothers

Good Work Being Carried On In Saskatchewan

Enjoying the benefits of the $50,000 Anti-T.B. Fund, eight mothers have been taken to the Saskatchewan Sanatorium at Fort Qu'Appelle. The eight are from points in the province very far remote from each other, and in each case the fact that the mother can be given treatment means that the children will be much more safe from danger of T.B. than before.

Not nearly $8,000 has yet been collected. Indeed, the funds actually received are only about $3,000, but gifts are coming along steadily. So it seemed safe to the Anti-T.B. League to have that number of the mothers start their treatment before the disease got more stubbornly fixed.

All readers who are willing to help in this move to make all the homes of Saskatchewan safer from T.B. are asked to send their gifts, even if they cannot be large, to The Leader, Regina; The Times, Moose Jaw; The Star, Saskatoon.

CATARRHAL DEAFNESS

is greatly relieved by constitutional treatment. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE is a constitutional remedy. Catarrhal Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result. Unless the inflammation can be reduced, your hearing may be destroyed forever. HALL'S CATARRH MEDICINE acts through the blood on the mucous surfaces of the system, thus reducing the inflammation and assisting Nature in restoring normal conditions.

Canada's Great Future Is Not Questioned In The United States

Canada has much to expect of 1923 in the way of new foreign capital coming into her territory for the ordinary investment of surplus funds and to promote various industrial developments. The Dominion's popularity is increasingly in the ascendancy with the United States as an outlet for surplus funds, whilst the wisdom and advisability of achieving industrial expansion by Canadian establishment is continuously being brought home to more American manufacturers. The year 1922 featured an awakening of industrial interest in the Dominion on the part of British industrialists, springing out of the gradual emersion of the British Isles from the post-war trade depression, and this will likely be followed up in 1923 by a substantial investment and industrial establishment, especially if sterling continues its upward trend towards par.

The year 1922 set up a new record for American investment in Canada. The total of Canadian bond sales in the United States was over $261,000,000 or $37,900,000 in excess of the previously highest figure reached in 1920. Add to this investments of a general nature other than those represented by the sale of bonds and it would not be difficult to account for well on to $300,000,000. Only once, in 1913, has Canada received a larger amount of outside capital within a year, when the total value of Canadian bond sales in the United States and Great Britain was $327,000,000, or approximately $60,000,000 more than the sales in the United States alone in 1922.

This illustrates in a very illuminating manner the change that has taken place in the currents of finance in so far as Canada is concerned, and how the reservoir of American wealth became available to Canada so soon as supplies from Britain were cut off. As an evidence of the change which has taken place, it may be noted that during the period 1908-1914 inclusive the total of Canadian bond sales in the United States was only $173,000,000, or $90,000,000 less than the aggregate for 1922.

This tremendous investment in Canada on the part of the United States has been built up upon a basis of faith in the soundness and stability of all Dominion affairs resulting from a satisfaction in personal investigation to which the proximity of the two countries lends convenience. Reliance in the great future of Canada is unquestioned in the United States, and it is because investors or their agents there have so closely watched the trend of Canadian development that Canada is receiving their funds in such volume.

All indications combine to suggest a re-entry of British capital on a large scale into Canadian development in 1923. The vanguard arrived in 1922 and there has since been a brightening of conditions in the United Kingdom. The emersion from the depression in the British Isles has been accompanied by a strong desire to strengthen trade ties with the Dominions, and material indications already evidence this as far as Canada is concerned. Not only may a greater amount of capital be invested in Canada from the British Isles this year, but the greater establishment of branch plants be looked forward to with confidence. In the opening days of the year came the announcement that three British grain brokerage houses would open branch plants in Vancouver.

Before the war the capital instrumental in fostering most Canadian development was overwhelmingly British. During the war and since, British capital has stood still and American capital increased, so that at the last computation it was estimated that the United Kingdom had about two and a half billions of dollars in Canada and the United States two billions, making it merely a matter of time under present conditions before United States money should equal that of the British Isles and pass it in occupying the first place in Canadian development. There is no doubt but that in the readjustment of conditions, including the strengthening of sterling, British money will come back to Canada in its old volume. There is no reason to expect that United States investment will ever fall off, but the two come into good-natured competition. From the combination Canada should receive an unprecedented development.

The Earth's Menace

No One Can Control Gradual Drying Up of Surface

It is generally admitted that the earth was once very hot, spinning in space, and surrounded with masses of various vapors. As it chilled a crust formed, on which water condensed when it was cool enough. The seas collected in the hollows and, being very hot, evaporated rapidly, causing torrential rainfall which carved the surface into mountain, valley and plain. None of the water could penetrate the surface, because it was so hot that it was driven out as steam. Thus the whole of the moisture was on the actual surface or in the clouds.

As the earth cooled, water was able to penetrate the surface more and more, following the heated core as closely as the temperature would allow. The whole crust is permeable though not equally so. All rocks and strata hold water to a greater or less degree. It is not possible to sink a deep shaft for a mine without encountering water, as we know to our cost, for it has to be pumped out at great expense. It is common knowledge that, if a mine is not worked, it is soon flooded.

We are thus irresistibly forced to the conclusion that we are in the midst of a gradual progressive drying up of our earth, due to causes almost entirely out of our control, which has already destroyed a great deal of the best parts of the earth's surface and now menaces the rest, and which must sooner or later put an end to our race and all other life on the world.

Great Britain's Burden

Everybody Expects Her to Keep World in Order

With a million and a half unemployed to provide for, it is impossible for us to take upon our shoulders the entire expense of the war, cancelling debts in Europe, financing native rulers in the Near East, cutting off Mosul from Iraq, as the Turks desire, while at the same time bearing the heavy burden of that enormous debt to the United States which was incurred in part for the sake of the Allies. Shortly before the general election, Mr. Bonar Law warned the outside public that this country cannot police the whole world. He may, perhaps, have had in his mind a pertinent passage from Sir Arthur Conan Doyle's fine book, "The Tragedy of the Korosko," in which a party of Englishmen on a Nile boat discuss British policy in Egypt with an American friend.

"It's my opinion," says one speaker, "that we have been the policemen of the world long enough. We policed the seas for pirates and slaves. Now we police the land for Dervishes and brigands and every sort of danger to civilization. There is never a mad priest, or a witch doctor, or a firebrand, or any sore on this planet who does not report his appearance by sniping the nearest British officer. One tires of it at last. If a Kurd breaks loose in Asia Minor, the world wants to know why Great Britain does not keep him in order. If there is a military mutiny in Egypt, or a Jehad in the Soudan, it is still Great Britain who has to set it right. And all to an accompaniment of curses such as the policeman gets when he seizes a ruffian among his pals. We get hard knocks and no thanks, and why should we do it?"

Mandates in the east and debt remissions in the west must be regulated according to the nation's capacity, which has been so heavily strained by the gigantic outgoings of the war.—From the British Weekly.

World's Chief Granary Was Vast Wilderness Only Forty Years Ago

The growth of Western Canada is an inspiring romance. It is only fifty years ago last July that the first homestead was filed on the prairie, by John Sanderson, who still lives on his farm near Portage la Prairie, Manitoba. It is only forty-one years ago last September that the first quarter section of Canadian Pacific Railway land was sold by W. D. Scott, the present Assistant Deputy Minister of the Canadian Department of Immigration and Colonization. At that time comparatively few people had any conception of the enormous possibilities for agricultural development of that fertile plateau running westward from Winnipeg to the foothills of the Rocky Mountains.

The province of Manitoba had a population of 62,260, compared with 613,000 last year. Winnipeg was frontier town with 7,900 people, and Brandon, which was regarded as a far-flung outpost of the west, boasted of a few hundred in population. Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw were mounted police outposts or Hudson's Bay trading posts. The main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway ran as far as Portage la Prairie, about 50 miles west of Winnipeg. Now there are three transcontinental lines spanning the prairies and extending on to the Pacific coast. Manitoba now has 4,000 miles of railways, Saskatchewan 6,000, Alberta 4,000 and British Columbia 4,100. Calgary, Edmonton, Regina, Saskatoon, Moose Jaw are thriving and modern cities. Winnipeg is known as the metropolis to the Canadian west, with a population of over 200,000. Vancouver is one of the great seaports on the Pacific, with a population of 150,000

Numbers of the hardy pioneers of forty years ago are enjoying their declining days in the communities they wrested from the wilderness, prosperous, contented, with their children's families gathered about them or seeking their own fortunes still further westward or northward. They have seen civilization step into the west and the wilderness swept out. Today are thriving cities and towns where bleaching buffalo bones marked the ox trails of forty years ago. Today are mighty freight trains, each with its thousand-ton cargo of wheat or merchandise, roaring down the roads where the old carts creaked. Today are schools within walking distance of every farmhouse, churches within driving distance of every home. Today are telephones and every modern convenience linking communities over vast distances by the common bond of the spoken word.

The wilderness of forty years ago has become one of the great granaries in the world, truly an abnormal development. But this is not all. In 1881, when W. D. Scott sold that section of land to the father of a present-day newspaperman, there was scarcely any farm livestock in the west. Dairying was not engaged in at all. Today there are 6,998,317 farm animals on the prairies, of which 881,399 are milch cows; and dairying is only second in importance to grain growing. But development and progress have been general in every phase of life. The term Western Canada is now synonymous with modern progress, not only in agriculture and commerce, but in the more essential and finer elements necessary to a full life. Moreover, from out of that erstwhile wilderness marched a great army of the scions of the hardy pioneers of two generations ago to the Great War, impelled by their inherent love of democracy and right.

While progress and development in the older parts of Canada have not been so remarkable in recent years as they have been in the west, yet in the last forty years there has been a phenomenal growth in every direction.

Says Europe Near Recovery

United Press Specialist Believes Settlement Appearing Possible

Europe is much nearer to recovery than is generally thought in America, according to J. W. T. Mason, United Press specialist of foreign affairs, who reported from a tour of investigation in Europe. Mason visited Great Britain, Germany, France and the Ruhr. He had confidential interviews with the leading European ministers, Premier Bonar Law, Dr. Bucher, the head of Germany's industrial trust, and the real dictator of the German Ruhr policy, Georges Clemenceau. M. Tardieu, Prof. Bergson and many others.

"Europe needs only a settlement between France and Germany, on a basis of mutual concessions, for the world to be set permanently to rights," Mason said. "The Ruhr policy of France is frightening both the French and the Germans. When both sides are frightened a compromise usually results. But there is no certainty of this under present circumstances for a considerable time to come.

"The French are very uneasy because they fear that the Ruhr expedition may bring no adequate financial return. The Germans are alarmed because they think that the French are resolved to separate the Ruhr from Germany, occupy the left bank of the Rhine, and split Bavaria and South Germany from the north.

"Premier Poincare did not want to go into the Ruhr but was forced in by President Millerand. Neither Poincare nor Millerand knows what the immediate future holds in store. Tardieu is being groomed for the next premiership if Poincare falls. The keynote of Tardieu's policy will be to try to reduce the German indemnity and try to secure financial help from England and America."

Something Unusual

I might get you into worse trouble than you're headed for already, and what I've got to do, I can do alone."

Wheeling his horse, he rode off toward Crawling Water.

That he could take his men with him, storm the jail and release Santry, Wade did not doubt, but to do so would be to bring each of the men into open conflict with the law, a responsibility which he was resolved to bear alone. Then, too, because his long ride had cooled him somewhat, he intended to make one more appeal to the Senator. Possibly, Moran had exceeded his instructions, and if this were so, it was no more than just that Rexhill, who had seemed to evince a willingness to be helpful, should have the opportunity to disown the act of his agent. Besides, if Santry could be peaceably released, he would be freed of the charge hanging over him, which would not be the case if he were taken from the jail by strategy or violence.

With haggard countenance and inflamed eyes, Wade bore little resemblance to his normal self when he again appeared before the Senator, who received him in his dressing-gown, being just out of bed. Rexhill listened with a show of sympathy to his cattleman's story, but evidently he was in a different mood from the day before.

"My boy, your friendship for your foreman is leading you astray. Your faith in him, which is natural and does you credit, is blinding you to an impartial view of the case. Why don't let the law take its course? If Santry is innocent his trial will prove it. At any rate, what can I do?"

"Senator—" Wade spoke with intense weariness. "Only yesterday you offered to help us. The situation, as I explained it then is unchanged now, except for the worse. Bill Santry is free of any complicity in Jensen's death. I am positive of it. He sent me word that he had not left the ranch, and he would not lie to save himself from hanging. Besides, the men were shot in the back, and that is absolute proof that Santry didn't do it."

BACK ACHED TERRIBLY

Mrs. McMahon Tells How She Found Relief by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Chatham, Ont.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a run-down condition after the birth of my baby boy. I had terrible pains and backache, and was tired and weak, not fit to do my work and care for my three little children. One day I received your little book and read it, and gave up taking the medicine I had and began taking the Vegetable Compound. I feel much better now and am not ashamed to tell what it has done for me. I recommend it to any woman I think feels as I do."—Mrs. J. R. McMAHON, 153 Harvey St., Chatham, Ont.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, has for nearly fifty years been restoring sick, ailing women to health and strength. It relieves the troubles which cause such symptoms as backache, painful periods, irregularities, tired, worn-out feelings and nervousness. This is shown again and again by such letters as Mrs. McMahon writes, as well as by one woman telling another. These women know, and are willing to tell others, what it did for them; therefore, it is surely worth your trial.

Women who suffer should write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Cobourg, Ontario, for a free copy of Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women."

"Mere sentiment, Gordon; mere sentiment. Proof? Pooh!"

Rexhill's slightly contemptuous tone worked upon Wade in his exhausted, overwrought condition, and stung him. A strange look of cunning appeared in his eyes, as he leaned across the table which separated them.

"Senator, Moran made me an offer the other day for my land. If—I accept that offer, will you exert your influence in Santry's behalf?"

Coming so swiftly upon his planning, the prospect of such signal success was so gratifying to Rexhill that only in halting speech could he maintain a show of decorous restraint. His countenance expressed exultant relief as well it might, since he seemed to see himself snatched out of the jaws of ruin.

"Why, Gordon, I— Of course, my boy, if you were to show such a generous spirit as that, I—er—should feel bound . . ." The sense of his remarks was lost in the crash of Wade's fist upon the table.

"Damn you!" The cattleman was beyond himself with fatigue, rage, and a rankling sense of injustice. "They told me that was your game. I believed it of Moran, but I thought you were square. So you're that sort, too, eh? Well, may you rot in hell before you get my land, you robber! Now listen to me." He waved his hand in the direction of the street. "Out there's a hundred men—real men—who're waiting the word to run you out of this country, you and Moran, too, and by God we'll do it—we'll do it—and we'll begin it right away!" Again his heavy fist crashed down on the table. "Never mind Bill Santry"—the instinct of discretion was gaining in Wade's mind—"he may stay where he is for the present. First, we'll attend to you pirates—then we'll see."

He stopped suddenly at sight of Helen, who, attracted by the noise, had entered the room, and stood before him in a filmy negligee.

"What is the matter, Gordon?" she demanded anxiously.

"I beg your pardon." Wade spoke awkwardly, unashamed of himself, except for her. "I'm worn out and I—I lost my temper."

"Will you—er—leave the room!" The Senator was beginning to pull himself together. It was the first time he had ever been ragged in such a way, and his composure had suffered; he spoke now with more than his usual pomposity.

"I will," Wade answered curtly, as he turned on his heel and departed.

The Senator puffing slightly, fiddled with his glasses.

"Your young friend has seen fit to accuse me of—of—" For the life of him, he could not at once say of just what he had been accused, unless he allowed self-accusation to prompt his words. "Some sheepherders have been murdered, I believe," he went on, "and Wade seems to think that Moran and I are implicated."

"You," his daughter exclaimed; evidently her amazement did not extend to Moran.

"Preposterous nonsense!"

"Yes, of course." Helen walked to the window and stood looking down into the street. "I'm afraid Gordon hasn't improved since we saw him last," she added, finally. "He seems quite a different person from the man I used to know. What are you going to do about it?"

"Crush him!" The Senator's lips set in a thin, white line, as his hand descended on the table on the spot where Wade's fist had fallen. "This, apparently, is his gratitude to me for my interest in him. Now I intend to show him the other side of me."

"Certainly, no one can blame you for punishing him. Oh, everything between him and me is quite over," said the girl, with a peculiar smile. "He's a perfect bear."

"I'm glad you feel that way about it, Helen." Her father's set lips relaxed into a responsive smile. "You couldn't be my daughter and not have some sense."

"Have I any?" Helen naively asked.

She was gazing out of the window again, and to her mind's eye the dusty, squalid street became a broad highway, with jewelers' shops on either side, and modistes, and other such charming things, just as they are found in New York, or—Paris!

CHAPTER VIII.

Higher Than Statute Law

Wade descended the stairs of the hotel and went into the barroom, fuming with rage and chagrin because Helen had seen him in such a temper. Like most men of action, he took pride in his self-control, which seldom failed him, but the villainy of the Senator's attitude had momentarily mastered his patience.

Gathered about the bar were a number of men whom he knew, but beyond a nod here and there he took no notice of them, and went to sit down alone at a small table in the corner. His friends suspected his desire to be left alone, although several eyed him curiously and exchanged significant remarks at his appearance. They seemed to be of the opinion that, at last, his fighting blood had been aroused, and now and then they shot approving glances in his direction.

"Whiskey," Wade called to the bartender, and a bottle and glass were placed on the table in front of him.

With a steady hand the ranchman poured out and quickly swallowed two stiff drinks of the fiery liquor, although he was not ordinarily a drinking man. The fact that he drank now showed his mental state more clearly than words could have expressed it. Searching in his pockets, he found tobacco and papers and rolled and lighted a cigarette. Nothing could be done for Santry until night, and meanwhile he intended to get something to eat and make the sleep that he needed to fit himself for the task ahead of him. He ordered a steak, which on top of the whiskey put new life into him.

The more he thought of his outburst of temper before Helen the more it annoyed him, for he realized that he had "bitten off a bigger wad than he could chew," as Bill Santry would have expressed it. Rascal though the Senator was, so far as he was concerned, Wade felt that his hands were tied on Helen's account. For her sake, he could not move against her father in a country where the average man thought of consequences after the act rather than before it. In a sense Wade felt that he stood sponsor for Crawling Water in the hospitality which it offered Helen, and he could not bring peril down on her head.

But as for Moran and his hirelings, that was a different matter! When the ranchman thought of Moran, no vengeance seemed too dire to fit his misdeeds. In that direction he would go to the limit, and he only hoped that he might get his hands on Moran in the mix-up. He still looked upon his final visit to Rexhill as a weakness, but it had been undertaken solely on Santry's account. It had failed, and no one now could expect tolerance of him except Helen. If the posse was still at the ranch, when he and Santry returned there at the head of their men, they would attack in force, and shoot to kill if necessary.

He learned from Lem Trowbridge, who presently joined him at the table, that the posse would probably still be there, for the report in town was that Moran had taken possession of the property and meant to stay there.

"He does, eh?" Wade muttered grimly. "Well, he may, but it will be with his toes up. I'm done, Lem. By Heaven, it's more than flesh and blood can stand!"

"It sure is! We're with you, Gordon. Your men were over at my place a few hours ago. We grubbed them and loaned them all the guns we could spare. I sent over my new Winchester and a belt of shells for you."

"Thanks."

"That's all right. You're more than welcome to all the help I can give you, not only against Moran and his gang, but against Rexhill. If you like, we'll run him out of town while you're putting the fear of God into Moran. Lord! I sure would like to go back to the ranch with you, but it's your own quarrel and I won't butt in."

Wade briefly explained his attitude toward the Rexhills and added that their cause would not be helped by violence toward the Senator, who was a big man at Washington, and might stir the authorities into action on his behalf if he could prove personal abuse. The noise that would be made by such a happening might drown out the justice of the cattlemen's claim.

"Well, that's true, too," Trowbridge admitted. "I can see the point all right. What we want to do is to get something 'on' the Senator. I mean something sure—something like this Jensen shooting."

Cases ended in death! So a recent Canadian investigation showed. These were not cases of infectious diseases—of consumption—of typhoid! They were cases where a person had sustained some slight injury—a cut, a burn, a wire-prick—and where the wound, being thought not serious enough for careful treatment, had been neglected. Blood-poisoning and death resulted.

When you or your children sustain any injury, ensure against infection by applying Zam-Buk. This balm soothes the pain, stops bleeding, and by destroying all germs prevents blood-poisoning, etc. Hence no time need be lost from work or pleasure by those who use Zam-Buk. All dealers, 50c. box.

France Insisting On Ruhr Mine Owners Paying Coal Tax

Duesseldorf.—By a decree issued by Gen. Degoutte, Hugo Stinnes and other mine owners and directors are liable to trial by court-martial, with possible imprisonment and fine, if they refuse to pay taxes on coal production, or if they oppose the French and Belgian efforts to wrest from them shipments of fuel on account of reparations.

The order, which becomes effective immediately, provides against eventualities in the struggle, and also calls for the seizure of coal at the pit head in cases where the Germans refuse to pay the taxes, and gives the Franco-Belgian authority to refuse export licenses to any owners failing to comply with their demands.

The system of tax collections or assessments on coal is virtually the same as that of the German Government, to which owners are supposed to pay an internal tax of 40 per cent. upon all coal taken from the mines.

Since the operation began the German owners have flatly refused to pay the tax. The French mining officials will tax the owners on a tonnage basis, according to production. Should they refuse to comply with these demands, the owners may be arrested, tried imprisoned and also subjected to heavy fines in francs.

In order to avoid difficulties with neutral countries, the 40 per cent. tax will not be imposed on shipments to Holland or Switzerland.

Searchers Find Hunter's Body

Charles Allard Died of Exposure in Cowichan Hills

Victoria.—The body of Charles Allard, the Cowichan cougar hunter, who has been missing since February 13, was found Feb. 27 by search parties, less than a mile from Jones' Cabin, B.C., in the Cowichan Hills. Apparently he died of cold and exposure soon after he separated from his partner, Albert Sockett, formerly of Calgary, who was found five days ago crazed and starving, and is now slowly recovering in Cowichan hospital.

The two men were trailing a cougar and struck different trails from their dogs. A snowstorm obliterated their trails and they were lost in the hills.

British Payments on U.S. Debt

Chancellor of Exchequer Gives Figures For 62-Year Term

London.—Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying to a questioner in the House of Commons said that, on the basis of the 62-year term for payment of the debt to the United States, the payments on the debt would be as follows:

An immediate cash payment of $4,128,085; an annual payment of $161,000,000 for ten years and a final payment of $118,481,330 or an aggregate of £2,246,000,000 at par of exchange, and four per cent. more at 4.68.

These figures, he said, had no meaning except in relation to the 62-year term. If Great Britain paid more speedily then the aggregate would be reduced.

HER HEART SKIPPED EVERY THIRD BEAT

Mrs. James Burleigh, 248 King St. E., Chatham, Ont., writes:—"I think it my duty to let you know, what Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills have done for me.

I suffered for years with palpitation of the heart, my nerves were very bad, and I could not be left alone at any time. I doctored for over a year, and the doctor said my heart was very bad as it skipped every third beat.

I gave up, just at this time, and then my mother advised me to try Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, saying my eldest brother had been relieved by using them when he was very bad with his heart and nerves. I got a box and started to take them, and when I had used it I felt a lot better; could sleep a little and felt stronger. I continued taking them for about three months, and felt better than I had for years.

When I think of the misery and suffering I went through before I started Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills, I feel like letting everyone know what they did for me."

Ambassador Harvey Praises Britain's Way Of Handling Debt

London.—"One or two debtors appeared and talked about the weather; Great Britain arrived and talked business. The outcome was the completed settlement of this greatest financial transaction in less than a month," declared George Harvey, United States Ambassador to Great Britain, in a speech delivered at a dinner given by the Pilgrims in honor of Rt. Hon. Stanley Baldwin, Chancellor of the Exchequer, who headed the British debt funding mission to Washington.

The Prince of Wales surprised the Pilgrims by dropping in unexpectedly. He is a member of the Pilgrims, and he explained that he did not want to make a speech or to be toasted, but came simply as a member to hear the speeches and to have dinner.

Ambassador Harvey said the settlement of the British debt question was the first conclusive settlement of a really vital world problem since the armistice. He said he firmly believed it enhanced the mutual respect and everlasting friendship between Great Britain and the United States.

"The United Kingdom," said the Ambassador, "continues to rest on the rock of financial integrity and national honor."

Railway Watchman Murdered

C.N.R. Employee at Ashcroft, B.C., Riddled by Bullets

Ashcroft, B.C.—Dan Sullivan, 76 years old, a watchman on the Canadian National Railway, five miles east of here, was found dead with six bullet holes in the region of his heart, one going through his mouth, and the tip of one finger being shot off. Apparently the motive for the crime was not robbery, as a number of checks and $40,000 in cash was found in the dead man's pocket.

Mr Bishop Explains.

According to a recent statement by Commissioner E. S Bishop, there is a certain amount of confusion in the public mind regarding responsibility for the enforcement of the liquor laws. This is explained by the Commissioner as follows—

Thruout the Province, as a whole, outside cities and the larger towns, responsibility rests with the Alberta Provincial Police. In connection with this force, there is organised a special Liquor Squad, in order to increase their efficiency in this branch of their duty.

In cities and towns, this responsibility rests on the municipal police and the civic authorities. This arrangement between provincial and municipal authorities was made mainly in the interests of economy and to prevent unnecessary over-lapping. The ultimate responsibility for the maintenance of all law and order, however, in urban and rural communities alike, rests with the Attorney-General, and he may, if circumstances justify it, utilise Provincial Police within a municipality.

PROSECUT ON OF MOONSHINERS.

In the case of illicit manufacture by means of stills—or "moonshining"—these offences come under the Inland Revenue Act, which is a federal law. Respousibility, therefore, for detecting, prosecuting and punishing offenders of this class rests with the Dominion Government officials, such as Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and officers of the Dept. of Inland Revenue, whose instructions come from Ottawa.

In order, however, to deal more effectively with this kind of offence, which is one of the most troublesome and prevalent form of violation of any of the liquor laws, special arrangements have been made between the department of the Attorney General of Alberta and the Department of Inland Revenue, Ottawa, whereby some twenty-five Alberta Provincial Police have been duly appointed special officers of the Department of Inland Revenue.

These men have been carefully stationed thruout the province in order to make their services available when necessary. Co-operating as they do very closely with all provincial police officers and inland revenue officers, there has been a marked increase in the efficiency of the joint force in dealing with this abuse.

This division of responsibility between municipal, provincial and federal police forces, if better understood, would help the public to understand the conditions under which these laws are enforced.

"Too Old at Forty."

A story which has a bearing on the much discussed question "too old at forty" which was raised once again the other day comes from Constantinople, says the Toronto Globe. It tells of the marriage of a Turk aged 146 who has taken his fourth wife, a girl of 25. For 90 years he worked as a street porter, but grew tired of it on reaching the age of 110, and has since worked in a factory. He lost all his teeth and hair at 109 and then grew an entirely new set of both. He hasn't much patience with his 99-year old son who insists on sticking around the house.

Michel Roy Tells What Dodd's Kidney Pills Did for Him

Quebec man who Suffered from Rheumatism in the Hip and Back tells of Benefit he Received from Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Lac Etchemin, Que.—(Special).—"In the Autumn of 1929, I suffered so greatly from rheumatism in the hip and pains in the back, that at times it prevented me from walking, also sleeping. I decided to try Dodd's Kidney Pills and have not regretted doing so."

Mr. Michel Roy, who lives here, makes the above statement. He feels that he owes it to other sufferers of rheumatism to tell how he found relief from his suffering.

Other sufferers from rheumatism tell of pains relieved and health restored through the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They act directly on the kidneys. They strengthen the kidneys and put them in shape to strain the uric acid out of the blood. Uric acid crystallizing in the muscles cause pains known as rheumatism.

Ask your neighbor if Dodd's Kidney Pills are not the best remedy.

A Trouble Maker

Tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth—and make a lot of trouble.—Kingston Standard.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

A young man who practiced medicine in Pennsylvania became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. This was Dr. Pierce, who finally made up his mind to place some of his medicines before the public, and moving to Buffalo, N.Y., put up what he called his "Favorite Prescription," and placed it with the druggists everywhere.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for diseases peculiar to womankind. After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged-down by weaknesses of her sex—a woman is quickly restored to health by its use. Thousands of women testify that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has entirely eradicated their distressing ailments.

More recently that wonderful discovery of Dr. Pierce's, called An-uric (for kidneys and backache), has been successfully used by many thousands who write Dr. Pierce of the benefits received—that their backache, rheumatism, and other symptoms of uric acid deposits in joints or muscles have been completely conquered by its use.

Send 10c to Dr. Pierce's Laboratory in Bridgeburg, Ont., for trial package of any of his remedies.

Made First Locomotive

Honor Belongs to Matthew Murray an English Engineer

The great George Stephenson did not as some believe make the first successful locomotive. That honor belonged to an English engineer, Matthew Murray by name. Murray's production was the famous Blenkinsop, a steam engine of four horsepower, which, on June 24th, 1812, at four o'clock in the afternoon, started with a burden of eight wagons of coal, each weighing three and a quarter tons, and fifty passengers. Murray died in 1826, aged sixty-one. Stephenson declared he could improve upon the Murray engines and did it as everyone knows.

A MOTHER'S HEALTH NEEDS GREAT CARE

Care of Home and Children Often Causes a Breakdown

The woman at home, deep in household duties and the care of motherhood, needs occasional help to keep her in good health. The demands upon a mother's health are many and severe. Her own health trials and her children's welfare exact heavy tolls, while tired nerves, broken rest and much indoor living tend to weaken her constitution. No wonder that the woman at home is often indisposed through weakness, headaches, backaches and nervousness. Too many women have grown to accept these visitations as a part of the lot of motherhood. But many and varied as her health troubles are, the cause is simple and relief at hand. When well, it is the woman's good blood that keeps her well; when ill she must make her blood rich to renew her health. The nursing mother more than any other woman in the world needs rich blood and plenty of it. There is one way to get this good blood so necessary to perfect health, and that is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. W. T. Riley, R.R. No. 1, Apple Hill, Ont., has proved the great value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to mothers, and tells her story as follows:—"Two years ago, after the birth of my boy, I became very weak and run down. Gradually I lost weight and energy until I was unable to do my housework. I could not sleep, my nerves would twitch and jump so that I arose in the morning with heavy aching limbs and head. Indigestion helped to make the misery worse, and my heart would palpitate terribly. Doctored steadily for a year without getting better, but just dragged along feeling that I would never be well again. But one lucky day, on the advice of a friend, I began treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I have taken only six boxes, but I wish you could see the difference. I am now able to do my work, go about and enjoy myself. I feel so entirely like a new woman that I advise every weak or ailing woman to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I know they will get beneficial results."

If you are ailing, easily tired or depressed, it is a duty you owe yourself and your family to give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial. What this medicine has done for others it will surely do for you. You can get Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Regain Town Held Eighty Years

During the recent fighting in Tripoli between the Italian troops and rebels, the colonial troops fought eleven engagements against strong rebel detachments, which were forced to retire to the south with heavy losses.

Owing to the success of the Italians, land communication has been restored between Tripoli and Homs and the Italian troops in Homs and the population of the city, which has been virtually invested by the rebels for eighty years, have now been liberated.

One of the most effective vermifuges on the market is Miller's Worm Powders. They will not only clear the stomach and bowels of worms, but will prove a very noticeable medicine for children in regulating the infantile system and maintaining it in a healthy condition. There is nothing in their composition that will injure the most delicate stomach when directions are followed, and they can be given to children in the full assurance that they will utterly destroy all worms.

American Buys Alberta Polo Ponies

An outstanding deal in polo ponies in the province of Alberta was recorded recently when Mr. Priest, of New York, a polo pony expert, purchased 37 ponies from T. B. Jenkinson, of Cochrane, for $18,000 cash. These ponies were all raised in Alberta, by thoroughbred sires, thoroughly trained, and were shipped to Virginia for polo playing. The purchaser remarked that they were the best lot he had ever seen raised on any one farm.

Penouche

3 cups brown sugar, 1 cup milk, ½ cup butter, 1 teaspoon vanilla, ½ cup Sun-Maid raisins, ½ cup broken walnut meats.

Cook sugar, milk and butter together until it forms a hard ball when tested in cold water. Remove from fire. Add nuts, raisins and vanilla. Beat until creamy. Put into buttered tins and when nearly cold cut in squares.

Celery and Walnut Salad

2 cups chopped celery. Shredded lettuce, ½ cup mayonnaise, ½ cup English walnuts, Sun-Maid seedless raisins.

Mix chopped celery and nuts. Moisten with mayonnaise. Serve on shredded lettuce and garnish with the raisins which have been washed.

MOTHER! MOVE CHILD'S BOWELS

"California Fig Syrup" is Child's Best Laxative

Even if cross, feverish, bilious, constipated or full of cold, children love the "fruity" taste of "California Fig Syrup." A teaspoonful never fails to clean the liver and bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the souring food and nasty bile out of the stomach and bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers keep "California Fig Syrup" handy. They know a teaspoonful today saves a sick child tomorrow. Ask your druggist for genuine "California Fig Syrup" which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

American girls who gave up their lives in the world war numbered 161, the Women's Overseas Service League has announced.

Protect the child from the ravages of worms by using Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator. It is a standard remedy, and years of use have enhanced its reputation.

For a United Church

Dr. Wilson Is Enthusiastic Over Possibilities of Movement

(By J. Lewis Milligan)

The task of preparing the Presbyterian Church for Union with the Methodist and Congregational Churches, to form one United Church of Canada, has been undertaken by Rev. R. J. Wilson, D.D., at the request of the Presbyterian Church-Union Movement Committee. In order to initiate this great and inspiring task, Dr. Wilson has been granted three months' leave of absence from his ministery in Chalmers Church, Kingston.

"There is a thrill in this thing—can't you feel it?" he said to me the other day. "I take no second place to any man in my love for the Presbyterian Church, and if I thought that by Union we were to lose any of those vital and vigorous qualities that have placed Presbyterians in the front rank of thought and action throughout the world, I would be with Dr. Scott and Mr. MacBeth today."

"You seem to be quite sure that Church Union will be consummated," I said.

"I am as sure of that as I am that the sun will rise tomorrow morning," the doctor replied emphatically. "Can you imagine a progressive people like Canadians never changing the form of their ecclesiastical organizations from that which was made for an entirely different country and a different people? Such a static condition would result in religious stagnation, and I am not so sure but that this is what the churches are suffering from today. Church Union will not usher in the millenium, and it will not finally abolish all the differences in form and creed among Christians, but, so far as Canada is concerned, it will be a stupendous move forward. We believe that the consummation of this Union will give an inspiring lead to Christendom throughout the world. Church Union must come, and will come, despite all these efforts that are being put forward to stop it. Why, then, should we of this generation not share in its benefits? If we, as Presbyterians, do not take this tide of God at the floor, we shall spend the rest of our lives in shallows and miseries."

Muscular Rheumatism Subdued.—When one is a sufferer from muscular rheumatism he cannot do better than to have the region rubbed with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. Let the rubbing be brisk and continue until ease is secured. There is more virtue in a bottle of it than can be fully estimated.

Important Discoveries Made

The Danish Serum Institute at Copenhagen announces the discovery of a completely new method of manufacture of a better and cheaper serum against diphtheria, also a method of making possible the discovery of whooping cough in its earliest stage.

Paris reports the discovery of a serum from the blood of measles patients which has already checked two epidemics in Paris.

Dye Old Skirt Coat, Dress In Diamond Dyes

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple any woman can dye or tint her worn, shabby dresses, skirts, waists, coats, stockings, sweaters, coverings, draperies, hangings, everything, even if she has never dyed before. Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect home dyeing is sure because Diamond Dyes are guaranteed not to spot, fade, streak, or run. Tell your druggist whether the material you wish to dye is wool or silk, or whether it is linen, cotton or mixed goods.

A Prime Dressing for Wounds.—In some factories and workshops carbolic acid is kept for use in cauterizing wounds and cuts sustained by the workmen. Far better to keep on hand a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil. It is just as quick in action and does not scar the skin or burn the flesh.

H. Van Berkel Gives Tanlac Full Credit For Ending Long-Standing Stomach Disorders

"I'm never too busy to put in a good word for Tanlac. About two years ago it built me up from a hundred and nineteen to a hundred and forty pounds, and I have felt fine ever since." This emphatic statement was made recently by Henry Van Berkel, 2446 Main St., Vancouver, B.C., well-known foot specialist.

"For three years before I got Tanlac," he said, "I led a miserable existence from stomach trouble. I sometimes could not retain a bite I ate, and even when food did stay down I suffered from sourness and gas, and nothing I ate seemed to do me a particle of good. I was badly run down, lost weight, had no strength, and suffered a great deal from constipation.

"I took six bottle of Tanlac and got back my health. That covers the whole case. My stomach trouble is a thing of the past and I always feel strong and full of energy. Tanlac for me every time."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 35 million bottles sold.

No Helping Hand for Northern Farmers.

The Provincial Government will not in future back the notes of farmers who have to buy seed grain on credit. This is the substance of an announcement made last week in the Legislature.

The reason given is that in too many instances the farmers leave the Government to pay the note.

In the last fifteen years the Province has become liable to the banks for advances of seed grain money to farmers amounting to seven and a half million dollars. Two and a half millions have been repaid by parties thus accommodated, leaving the Province still pledged to the repayment of five million dollars.

A good share of this sum, the Ministers think, will have to come out of the pockets of the taxpayers. In many cases, due to a succession of crop failures or other uncontrollable conditions, the resources of the borrowers have been exhausted, and it is useless to look to them for money.

The withdrawal of this kind of assistance will be a hardship to many farmers. Perhaps it will prevent some getting seed, or getting as much seed as they require or would like to get. There are more farmers in the central and northern parts of the province this year than ever before who would find the Provincial credit useful, and will suffer because it is denied. It is unfortunate that, after the Government has taken care of the needs of farmers in the southern districts for many successive years the helping hand should have to be refused at the one time that it has been needed in any general way in other parts of the province.
